The rate of improper coding in Home Health is on the rise, up from 51% in 2014 to nearly 59% in 2015.

Among factors cited by the Office of the Inspector General (OIG) is clinicians' failure to correctly identify primary and secondary diagnoses or omission of information necessary to support the services rendered. The discovery was made during the OIG's ongoing evaluation of claims in Home Health, which has been deemed vulnerable to fraud and abuse.

To help facilities and agencies improve their coding and documentation, Elsevier has created the EduCode® Home Health Coding Curriculum. Designed to address the complexities of Home Health and the specific needs of consumers served, this targeted Elsevier training solution incorporates:

- Detailed instruction on the documentation necessary for accurate and compliant diagnosis coding on the Home Health claim form, the Outcome and Assessment Information Set (OASIS) and the care plan, as well as for performance improvement and quality reporting.
- Scenarios and issues specific to Home Health.

- Timely information on OASIS reporting.
- A focus on key coding and documentation concerns related to Home Health.
- Guidelines, conventions and sequencing instructions for coding Home Health diagnoses in ICD-10-CM.
- Pre-approved Continuing Education credits.
- Free webinars to complement education.
- Availability on Elsevier Performance Manager platform for robust reporting.

This complete package of Home Health clinical and administration education and tools can help Home Health entities meet related requirements, reduce risk and promote the quality documentation that supports optimal care.
